What is Enneagram?

The Enneagram is a system of personality typing that describes patterns in how people interpret the world and manage their emotions. There are nine Enneagram Personality Types, each of which has their own key motivations and fears that largely guide their actions and decisions.

Scoring Instructions

Add the X's marked in Column A, Column B, Column C, and so forth, through Column I. Place the number of X's you have made in the boxes below for columns A through I. If you have marked one box in each pair of statements and have added the number of X's correctly, the sum will be 36. If not, go back and recheck for mistakes either in counting X's or in arithmetic.

Each column corresponds to a personality type, as given below. Please note that they have been randomized and are not in numerical order.

Columns	A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I
Numerical Values	<input type="checkbox"/>
Personality Type	Nine	Six	Three	One	Four	Two	Eight	Five	Seven

Discovering which of the nine types is your basic personality type is the object of this test. If you have answered honestly and accurately, your basic personality type should be one of the top three scores.

To confirm your results, read the short type descriptions on the next page, and for complete descriptions in Personality Types, Wisdom of The Enneagram, or on the website www.EnneagramInstitute.com

If properly taken, the Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Indicator will have accurately assessed your basic personality type. If the results you have obtained are unclear, please review your responses to see if, on further reflection, you wish to change any of them.

For More Information

For a more accurate and complete assessment of your personality type, take the full RHETI online at The Enneagram Institute website.

The Nine Personality Types of the Enneagram

1. The Reformer. The rational, idealistic type. Ones are conscientious and ethical, with a strong sense of right and wrong. They are teachers, crusaders, and advocates for change: always striving to improve things, but afraid of making a mistake. Well-organized, orderly, and fastidious, they try to maintain high standards, but can slip into being critical and perfectionistic. They typically have problems with self-doubt and suspicion. At their Best: wise, discerning, realistic, and noble. Can be internally stable and self-reliant, courageously championing themselves and others.

2. The Enthusiast. The busy, variety-seeking type. Twos are extroverted, optimistic, versatile, and spontaneous. Playful, high-spirited, and practical, they are energetic, though they may become over-extended, scattered, and undisciplined. They constantly seek new and exciting experiences, which can become distractingly exhausting for them. At their Best: wise, discerning, realistic, and noble. Can be morally heroic.

3. The Helper. The caring, interpersonal type. Twos are empathetic, sincere, and warm-hearted. They are friendly, generous, and self-sacrificing, but can also be sentimental, flattering, and people-pleasing. They are well-meaning and driven to be close to others, but can slip into doing things for others in order to be needed. They have problems with possessiveness and with acknowledging their own needs. At their Best: unselfish and altruistic, they have unconditional love for others.

4. The Challenger. The powerful, dominating type. Threes are self-confident, strong, and assertive. Protective, resourceful, straight-talking, and decisive, but can also be egocentric and domineering. Threes feel they must control their environment, especially people, sometimes becoming confrontational and intimidating. Threes typically have problems with their tempers and with allowing themselves to be vulnerable. At their Best: self-mastering, they use their strengths and with allowing themselves to be vulnerable, they have unconditional love for others.

5. The Achiever. The success-oriented, pragmatic type. Threes are self-assured, attractive, and charming. Ambitious, competent, and energetic, they can also be status-conscious and highly driven for advancement. They are diplomatic and poised, but can also be overly concerned with their image and what others think of them. They typically have problems with workaholism and competitiveness. At their Best: self-accepting, authentic, everything they seem to be role models who inspire others.

6. The Loyalist. The committed, security-oriented type. Sixes are reliable, hard-working, responsible, and trustworthy. Excellent "trouble-shooters," they foresee problems and foster cooperation, but can also become defensive, evasive, and anxious—running from stress without confronting it. They can be cautious and indecisive, but also reactive, defiant and rebellious. They typically have problems with self-doubt and suspicion. At their Best: internally stable and self-reliant, courageously championing themselves and others.

7. The Peacemaker. The easygoing, self-effacing type. Nines are accepting, trusting, and stable. They are usually creative, optimistic, and supportive, but can also be too willing to go along with others to keep the peace. They want everything to go smoothly and without conflict, but they can also tend to be complacent, simplifying problems and minimizing anything that might threaten them. They typically have problems with melancholy, self-indulgence, and self-pity. At their Best: inspired and highly creative, they are able to renew themselves and transform their experiences.

8. The Investigator. The intense, cerebral type. Fives are self-aware, expressive, and reserved. They are emotionally honest, creative, and personal, but can also be moody and self-conscious. While they are alert and perceptive, they can also feel feeling vulnerable and defective, they can also feel disdainful and exempt from ordinary ways of living. They typically have problems with melancholy, self-indulgence, and self-pity. At their Best: inspired and highly creative, they are able to renew themselves and transform their experiences.

9. The ChALLENGER. The Challenging, domineering type. Threes are alert and determined. They are able to concentrate and focus on developing complex ideas and skills. Independent, innovative, and inventive, they can also become preoccupied with their thoughts and imaginary constructs. They become detached, yet high-strung and intense. They typically have problems with eccentricity, nihilism, and isolation. At their Best: visionary pioneers, often ahead of their time, and able to see the world in an entirely new way.

10. The Enthusiast. The Enthusiastic, joyful type. Twos are energetic, playful, and spontaneous. They are friendly, generous, and self-sacrificing, but can also be sentimental, flattering, and people-pleasing. They are well-meaning and driven to be close to others, but can slip into doing things for others in order to be needed. They have problems with possessiveness and with acknowledging their own needs. At their Best: unselfish and altruistic, they have unconditional love for others.

11. The Helper. The Caring, supportive type. Twos are empathetic, sincere, and warm-hearted. They are friendly, generous, and self-sacrificing, but can also be sentimental, flattering, and people-pleasing. They are well-meaning and driven to be close to others, but can slip into doing things for others in order to be needed. They have problems with possessiveness and with acknowledging their own needs. At their Best: unselfish and altruistic, they have unconditional love for others.

12. The Challenger. The Powerful, dominating type. Threes are self-confident, strong, and assertive. ## How Enneagram Type Relates to Finances

I am a big fan of the Enneagram. I have read about and taken multiple personality tests and to me, this was the most accurate of them all. Learning my enneagram type was similar to being wholly seen for the first time, even by me. At the same time, I better understand the people closest to me. It gave me a framework for relating to their motivations, their deepest fears, and their innate reactions. I wholly recommend learning about the Enneagram and then learning which type people around you are. It changed my life by allowing me to interact with others at a deeper, more personal level. It also gave me more empathy, a greater ability to help support others, and more confidence in where I fit in other people's lives. Today, we will be talking about how your Enneagram type relates to your money habits.

There are 9 Enneagram Types

Type9

The PEACEMAKER

The easygoing, self-effacing type. Nines are accepting, trusting, and stable. They are usually creative, optimistic, and supportive, but can also be too willing to go along with others to keep the peace. They want everything to go smoothly and be without conflict, but they can also tend to be complacent, simplifying problems and minimizing anything upsetting. They typically have problems with inertia and stubbornness. At their Best: indomitable and all-embracing, they are able to bring people together and heal conflicts.

The REFORMER

The rational, idealistic type. Ones are conscientious and ethical, with a strong sense of right and wrong. They are teachers, crusaders, and advocates for change: always striving to improve things, but afraid of making a mistake. Well-organized, orderly, and fastidious, they try to maintain high standards, but can slip into being critical and perfectionistic. They typically have problems with resentment and impatience. At their Best: wise, discerning, realistic, and noble. Can be morally heroic.

The ENTHUSIAST

The busy, variety-seeking type. Sevens are extroverted, optimistic, versatile, and spontaneous. Playful, high-spirited, and practical, they can also misapply their many talents, becoming over-extended, scattered, and undisciplined. They constantly seek new and exciting experiences but can become distracted and exhausted by staying on the go. They typically have problems with impatience and impulsiveness. At their Best: they focus their talents on worthwhile goals, becoming appreciative, joyous, and satisfied.

TYPE 1 & THEIR FINANCIAL BEHAVIOUR

In General...

Ones have a propensity to save versus spend, and want to make sure they have enough money for the future.

Their Financial Behaviour

Most likely to say they save what they earn and rarely spend. Owens projects the One's drive to "do the right thing" prompts them to save for a rainy day instead of buying themselves a new toy.

When they treat themselves, Ones spend the most on travel and clothing, but are also the type most likely to spend on fitness and wellness—perhaps an indicator of their desire to keep their bodies and minds in good working order.

Most types said their biggest money stressor was spending too much when they shouldn't. This wasn't the biggest worry for Ones, however—33% stressed most about having enough for future goals like retirement or their kids' college.

ADVICE

Let go of the All-Or-Nothing thinking and embrace the middle ground. You can save money and spend on yourself too.

If you think the stock market is a bad place because it supports morally wrong companies, perhaps the best strategy is to pick and choose companies that are morally right to you. For example, if you don't want to invest in SPY because it includes oil companies, maybe pick one or two companies you believe in and invest in them instead. I also like the idea of not investing in companies but rather, investing in yourself. Your education, your small business ideas, and your family and friends.

Set aside a small amount of money each week dedicated to yourself. If you budget it as 'Fun Money', it is accounted for and you will feel less guilt when you buy something for yourself.
Although, I can't guarantee the guilt goes away completely
